"With the financial markets experiencing an unprecedented level of volatility, investment professionals place a greater premium than ever before on sophisticated expertise to guide their decision-making," said Alexander Saint-Amand, President and Chief Executive Officer of Gerson Lehrman Group. "In the healthcare and biotechnology sectors, highly focused and unbiased education plays a critical role; the BIO Investor Forum brings together the three populations relevant to fully understand how to maneuver in this market: industry executives, sophisticated investors, and the world's top clinical thought leaders."

Through this partnership, BIO tapped Gerson Lehrman Group's network of more than 200,000 experts from around the world to identify clinicians and researchers to serve as panel speakers during the conference. The speakers were specifically identified to focus on some of the most interesting and novel development areas within the biotechnology industry, and represent some of the top clinical minds in their respective fields.

"This year's panel topics focus on disease areas in which we expect innovative new therapies to produce significant clinical advances, representing attractive investment and partnering opportunities," said Jim Greenwood, President and Chief Executive Officer of BIO. "Working with Gerson Lehrman Group allows BIO to provide the independent scientific and clinical expertise to offer outstanding Therapeutic Workshop panels for our investor and emerging company attendees."

The Seventh Annual BIO Investor Forum is a national investor conference featuring leading private and emerging public companies. The meeting attracts sophisticated healthcare venture and private equity investors, buy-side investors and research analysts.
